

Today's Introit takes from the Apocalypse, chapter 5, verse 12, and chapter 1, verse 6; and from Psalm 71, verse 1. We review these scriptures then understand them in relation to the feast. Content within the parenthesis is omitted in the Introit.

The Book of the Apocalypse is addressed to the seven churches in Asia; it contains prophecies of things that are and that will come to pass; St. John wrote it during his exile on Patmos in the year 64 A.D. Chapter 5 describes a book sealed with seven seals which are opened by the Lamb, Who thereupon receives adoration and praise. Chapter 1 recalls how St. John was ordered to write to the seven churches in Asia and how Christ appeared to him... "one like the Son of man, clothed with a garment to the feet,... his head and hairs were white as wool,... his eyes were as a flame of fire... his voice as a sound of many waters... his face shone as the sun in power. When I saw him, I fell at his feet as dead." So is the majesty of Christ. Seeing this, what would you have done?

5:12 The Lamb that was slain is worthy to receive power, and divinity and wisdom, and strength, and honor, (and glory, and benediction.)

1:6 (And hath made us a kingdom, and priests to God and His Father), to Him be glory and empire for ever and ever. Amen.

The Lamb is Jesus Christ, slain for the salvation of all mankind and, thereby, worthy of and owed the highest homage by all mankind, not sometimes, like on Christmas and Easter, but always, especially by faithfully attending Mass every Sunday of the year.

Psalm 71 is paraphrased: "A prophecy of the coming of Christ, and of his kingdom: prefigured by Solomon and his happy reign."

1. Give to the king thy judgment, O God; and to the king's son thy justice: (to judge thy people with justice, and thy poor with judgment.)

St. Robert Bellarmine comments: David prays that God grant his son, Solomon, to judge with justice. He does not pray that his son receive riches or power, but grace to properly discharge his duties. David knew kings are created for the people and not people for the kings; only the king who rules with this kind of justice is a good king. "Thy people" and "thy poor" refer to the same object: all men, however wealthy, are poor in the sight of God: "For they need assistance in everything, and whatever they have, they have from God, not as a gift, but as a loan; therefore, God can demand it back and take it away from them without offering them any injury; and though the heathen does not understand these things, God's people should understand it and profit by it." Finally, "judgment" and "justice" do differ, justice being a virtue and judgment an act of justice, but here they are used to convey the same idea.

The Feast of Christ the King proclaims to the world the absolute dominion of God, in His second Person, over all created things by a twofold right: creation & redemption. Jesus Christ, as God, created all things; as Man, He redeemed His fallen creation. Therefore, His kingship extends over all created things, forever. Although many do not submit to this truth now, it will, one day, become unavoidably clear to all. Amen!
