

Today's Introit takes from Psalm 43, verses 23 - 26; then 2. We identify them scripturally then understand them in relation to the feast. Bold print indicates the Introit inclusion.

Psalm 43 is paraphrased: "The Church commemorates former favors, and present afflictions: under which she prays for succor."

23. Arise, why sleep thou, O Lord? Arise, and cast us not off to the end.
24. Why turn thou thy face away? and forget (our want and) our trouble?
25. (For our soul is humbled down to the dust:) our belly cleaves to the earth.
26. Arise, O Lord, help us, and deliver us (for thy name's sake.)

St. Robert Bellarmine reads Psalm 43 as the church groaning under persecution. Arise, why sleep... As if to say, "Wake and see the sufferings of Thy servants while they labor for Thy cause; why are Thou silent?" Why turn thy face away... repeats the idea of a God apparently careless about His people's predicament. Our belly cleaves to the earth. St. Robert, seeing here an extreme humility, writes: "One can be humbled in mind and body even to the earth: in mind, if he truly reflect, and understand, and acknowledge that he is but mere dust, in the language of Abraham, who said, I will speak to the Lord, who am but dust and ashes: in his body, if he prays prostrate on the earth,... The petitioners here pray in both positions, for they say, For our soul is humbled down to dust; our belly cleaves to the earth." Arise, O Lord, help us... for thy name's sake. A final plea argues for divine aid lest the godless blaspheme the holy Name (for what will they say of a God who abandons His own?).

2. We have heard, O God, with our ears: our fathers have declared to us, (the work thou hast wrought in their days, and in the days of old.)

The Prophet begins Psalm 43 recalling the works of God, in days gone by, in hopes to receive favors anew. We have heard, O God, with our ears... As if to say, "Not vague legends or fairy tales, but true events we have heard; and not from some passerby or bard, but from our own fathers, from credible witnesses, we have heard; nor have we heard only what they experienced, but also of what their fathers saw did they report... the work Thou hast wrought."

The Feast of Sexagesima continues our preparations for the Season of Lent. Fallen man must oft recall God's past helps to fortify his confidence amid current dangers but always with a firm humility. The Epistle presents the litany of St. Paul's perils, his special revelations, AND his sting in the flesh, "lest the greatness of the revelations should exalt me." The Gospel imparts instruction on degrees of hearing God's word, carefully noting its proper hearing: "...in a good and perfect heart, hearing the word, keep it, and bring forth fruit in patience."

Hearing is a good thing; remembering what is heard is better; bringing forth fruit in its patient practice is its blossom
