

Today's Introit takes from Psalm 85 verses 1, 2, 3, & 4. We review them scripturally then understand them in relation to today's feast.

Psalm 83 is paraphrased: "A prayer for God's grace to assist us to the end." The liturgical Introit omits the verses in parenthesis.

1. Incline thy ear, O Lord, and hear me: (for I am needy and poor.) 2. (Preserve my soul, for I am holy;) save thy servant, O my God, that trusts in thee. 3. Have mercy on me, O Lord, for I have cried to thee all the day.

St. Robert Bellarmine notes the excellent way this prayerful psalm begins, which, by acknowledging God's greatness and our own poverty, prepares the heart to receive much for "the prayer of him that humbles himself shall pierce the clouds (Eccclus. 35).

Incline thy ear... "Thou art so high my God, bend down to me, and hear me for I am needy and poor as a beggar at the gates of a rich man." By poor and needy, the Psalmist means a person who, though he may be very wealthy, yet puts no trust in his material possessions, is not proud about them, nor despises others who are not as himself but rather despises the riches. St. Augustine says of Lazarus that he was not taken up by reason of his poverty but in virtue of his humility; nor was the rich man taken down on account of his riches but for his pride. Similarly, St. Robert observes that both Abraham and David abounded in riches but, since they took no pride in them, obtained the richer reward of heaven.

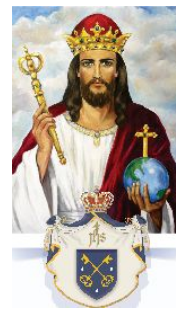

Next, another reason of being heard is posited: I am holy, "I have been baptized; I am a member of your mystical Body, Thou has a responsibility to save me." And note the boldness of address: Preserve my soul...; Save thy servant, O my God, that trusts in Thee (who is telling Who what to do?); but such is the cry of a poor child and a desperate soul who knows from whence true goods come.

Finally, Have mercy on me... pleads a hearing on reason of God's compassion; moreover, the case is made not once but many times I have cried to thee all day.

4. Give joy to the soul of thy servant, for to thee, O Lord, I have lifted up my soul.

Earlier salvation was asked for, now reads Give joy to the soul... which St. Robert understands as the interior joy of being at peace with God, of being in the state of heaven, of having sanctifying grace, 'the interior joy which strengthens a man against temptations and dangers during his exile, until the soul arrives in safety where there will be no temptations or dangers;' and the reason follows for to thee, O Lord, I have lifted up my soul, "as I have not sought true happiness elsewhere, O Lord, but in love transported my soul to thee, obtain for me this joy.

The Feast of the 15th Sunday after Pentecost speaks of true life. The Epistle addresses how life or death work in the soul; the Gospel records Jesus Christ restoring the dead to life. Let us ask, with a certain boldness, that God save us and grant us, even now, a taste of eternal life; and, on our part, "let us work, while there is time, good to all men, but especially to those who are of the household of the faith."

Queen of Angels Academy will host a seminar on creation, traditionally understood on Oct. 14th and 15th at Christ the King. Guest speakers, Hugh Owen and Pamela Acker, have entitled their talk, "The Traditional Catholic Doctrine of Creation: The Only Firm Foundation for a Culture of Life." The presentation aims to deepen your faith in God's wisdom & goodness; and show how science & revelation harmonize. Space is limited. See www.queenofangelsacademy.org to reserve your spot; the talks suitable for middle school & above.

The man who cannot believe his senses, and the man who cannot believe anything else, are both insane, but their insanity is not proved by any error in their argument, but by the manifest mistake of their whole lives. They have both locked themselves up in two boxes, painted inside with the sun and the stars; they are both unable to get out, the one into the health and happiness of heaven, the other even into the health and happiness of the earth. ~ G. K Chesterton
